Description

Arthur Daane heeft bij een vliegtuigongeluk zijn vrouw en zoon verloren en trekt nu met zijn filmcamera over de wereld, geobsedeerd door afscheid en verdwijnen, op zoek naar de anonimiteit. In Berlijn, bij uitstek een stad die door de historie bepaald is, voelt hij zich door nieuwe vrienden opgenomen. Als Arthur Daane in de winterse stad de jonge geschiedenisstudente Elik Oranje ontmoet, krijgen alle abstracte gesprekken plotseling zeer concrete contouren. Zij wordt zijn sirene, een geheimzinnige vrouw die hij wel móet volgen.

Insightful reviews

Steffi: Wunderbar melancholische Beschreibungen Berlins Mitte der 90er Jahren, die immer wieder an Wenders Film „Der Himmel über Berlin erinnern“, auch wenn der im Jahrzehnt zuvor spielt: Die graue Tristesse der Berliner Winters, Begegnungen mit Menschen, Melancholie, die Stimmen von Engeln, Seelen? Auch gibt es wie im Film Szenen in der Berliner Staatsbibliothek. Dazwischen wunderbare Dialoge zwischen Freunden über Geschichte, Philosophie, Kunst.

Nick Jones: For a story in which not a tremendous amount happens, this is quite a complex book, and I'm still thinking about it.

Marc: De hoofdfiguur Daane is typisch voor Nooteboom: sterk sartreaans, een buitenstaander dus met een sterke melancholische levensvisie (gebukt onder het verleden).

Berlijn neemt belangrijke plaats in, vooral als illustratie van de moeilijke omgang met het verleden. De interventies van het koor zijn zeer geslaagd en leggen het grondthema bloot: het gewicht van het verleden.

De vriendenkring is zeer bevlogen en de discussies diepzinnig, maar het doet allemaal erg aan Mulisch' Otto denken uit de Ontdekking van de Hemel.

Het verhaal rond Elik is niet erg geloofwaardig (in feite is de figuur zelf, zoals de andere vrienden, maar heel vluchtig), vooral het slot met de heropstanding is zeer zwak. Moraal: we moeten afstand nemen van het verleden, om te kunnen leven!, klinkt vrij clichématig. Dus niet helemaal geslaagd, tenzij als filosofische reflectie over de last van het verleden.

Jaimie: Arthur Daane's preoccupation with taking pictures traditional existence on movie is mirrored within the author's presentation of his protagonist's life. Readers are taken on a trip of commentary the place the traditional exercises of Daane's lifestyles are explored, fixating on dinners with friends, ruminations on his movie project, and non permanent trips out of nation for paintings as a cameraman. Daan's existence momentarily spikes in motion whilst he meets the enigmatic (if strange) Elik, a girl who treats his as an item of her personal use and who ultimately abandons him. Their unusual dating is obvious because the centrepont of the novel, however it necessarily fades into the monotony of normal life's occurances as Daane returns to Berlin after her rejection and resumes his general occupations.

MARTI: Hollanda Edebiyat? ile yeni tan??anlara: Noteboom gibi s?k?c? anlat?m ve gereksiz melankoli pe?inde de?il tüm Hollandal? yazarlar, pes etmeyin.

S.E.: an enormous novel. considerate and proposal provoking. a gorgeous murals to be learn and re-read. i like Cees Nooteboom, 'Rituals' is one among my favorite novels ever, i believe this joins it. and that i controlled to complete on All Souls Day!
