Description

With an interactive text and bright, playful illustrations, explore what baby animals really mean when they make their adorable baby animal sounds.

*When a lion says ROAR,
does he really mean MORE?
When a cow says MOO,
does she really mean YOU?*

How do we know what animals say when they say what they say with their sounds everyday? With an interactive text and bright, playful illustrations, Angela DiTerlizzi and Joey Chou explore what baby animals really mean when they make their adorable baby animal sounds.

Insightful reviews

Shannon: The art is just fine, the concept is cool, but the rhymes are just meh and the ending is just stupid.

Annette Ruane: This cute picture book was entertaining. I like that it was short and simple. I think this could be a good interaction book for parents to read to their kids. They could ask their child on each page what they thought that animal was really saying and then find out what the author intended the animal to really be saying. I also like how the illustrations were done in a playful way. It is obvious that the author did not intend on their audience to take this book seriously but to have fun and enjoy reading. I enjoyed how the pictures were cleverly related to the word. For example, when the horse said hay they were doing snow-angles in the hay. The natural colors gave this book an earthy feeling and the bright colors were used sparingly. Over all I would recommend this book to any one of my future young readers.

Notes: It's a nice concept book for students to be introduced to animals, and rhyming. Once again, I didn't find the book to be exciting or remarkable. Just another book in my opinion.

Kim: quite nice rhythm + animal sounds = nice storytime book. Also, an outstanding e-book approximately families.

Mrs. Nelson's: I already proposal Angela Diterlizzi used to be a genius (check out the Meno series!) and "Say What?" clinches it! A clever, lovely tale and fun, colourful illustrations make this an ideal tale time pick!--Review by way of Lauren Edward Sullivan: nice learn aloud for preschoolers.
